

Ecoratio is a dynamic, expanding company based in Stockholm and other sales offices in 10 countries. We deal with the distribution of innovative construction chemical products for the precast concrete industry. We do not only sell products, but primarily understand ourselves as service providers and offer holistic solutions to problems.

For the further successful expansion of our market position, we are looking for the region Scandinavia, with workplace home office a

Technical Sales Consultant

The technical support of our customers is the focus of our business idea. Intensive training allows our employees to critically assess existing production processes and to provide our customers with real help and measurable 'value added'. Your task is the sales support of the product tests, the explanation of the results to the customers in co-operation with other colleagues of your regional team and the subsequent technical further support.

This all forms the foundation for a partnership with our customers.

We expect from you:

- Professional and life experience, ideally in the precast concrete industry
- Experience in the introduction of innovative technical novelties
- 101% customer-oriented personality
- Traveling
- Assertiveness and resilience
- Flexibility and talent for improvisation
- Independent action with problem-solving mentality
- Flawless Swedish and English in spoken and written

We offer you: An independent and varied range of duties, an attractive salary, a solid and permanent training, a company car for private use, as well as all other necessary means of communication.

If you are interested in this task, we look forward to receiving your complete application. Discretion is self-evident.

Please apply at hr@ecoratio.com before 30th March 2018.